Warisan, the Hospitality Furniture Expert Speaks Out

Based in Bali, Indonesia, but with showrooms and offices located worldwide, Warisan Hospitality Furniture specialise in the manufacture and supply of customised fine furniture for use in interior and exterior projects. The company works predominantly on projects within 5* resorts – with an element of high-end residential throughout – and has the capabilities to produce designs that suit individual needs. More than 85% of Warisan's furniture is produced according to customer specifications.

Established in 1989, Warisan Hospitality Furniture has built up a packed portfolio of projects over the years, including recent schemes for the Four Seasons, Jimbaran – the renovation of guest rooms – and Rosewood Phuket, which opened in November 2017. Other projects that have recently completed, or are currently underway, include Four Seasons Desroches; Six Senses Uluwatu; and Resort, Kudadu – the sister site of Huravali Maldives.

Working with Richmond International, Warisan Hospitality Furniture has previously supplied furniture for the Four Seasons Resort and Spa, Mauritius. This was a project which Warisan completed in 2008 and really valued their involvement in.

Speaking to Premier Hospitality, Warisan Hospitality Furniture Managing Director, Paul Campbell, said:

"It was our pleasure to work with Richmond International on this project in Mauritius. Initially, we workshoped with Richmond International in an intense research and development phase, for the mock-up of rooms and public areas at the resort. This then lead to the supply of 90% of the furniture for the resort and villas."

Paul added:

"Richmond International is a very creative company and we greatly appreciate and respect their detailed approach to all aspects of the design, as well as their commitment to pushing forward during the R&D phase – achieving a brilliant outcome as a result.

"When we worked with Richmond International we really appreciated their approach to teamwork and their willingness to be flexible. They took on board our expertise in this particular field."

Teamwork is very important to Paul, who believes Warisan Hospitality Furniture's greatest asset is the team approach. The company's flexibility and problem solving 'can do' attitude can't be underestimated.

Paul said:

"We are pleased to have a team of over 400 craftsmen, designers, project leaders, and team members working together to produce goods at the highest quality and within competitive pricing of the hospitality furniture industry. We aim to please. We place a strong emphasis on attention to detail to satisfy our customer."

Second only to the team, are the wonderful natural resources that exist within close reach of Warisan's production facility. The possibilities for creativity become endless and with a clear conscience, too, as the company only use wood from government sustained plantations.

With all of Warisan Hospitality Furniture's work, the company begins with 'The Artisan Approach', which values skill and craftsmanship over machinery, before focusing on the material selection. The Indonesian Ministry of Forest and Environment has granted Warisan the coveted SLVK Certification to export wooden products in full compliance of the laws and in addition to carefully selected plantation hardwoods, Warisan utilises a variety of high quality materials (metals, stones, glass, marble etc) mostly sourced from Indonesia.

Quality control is vital and as Warisan Hospitality Furniture's production is all completed in-house, the company can guarantee an exceptional level of quality at every stage of the process. This process is backed by a passionate team of designers, managers and technical advisors all experienced in providing solutions and technical advice to clients.

Paul said:

"At Warisan Hospitality Furniture we pride ourselves on almost 30 years of experience, providing custom products for upper niche resorts worldwide. Our hands and our craftsmen outweigh our modern machinery and we are strategically located right in the midst of hard wood plantations. It is this perfect combination that helps us deliver a guaranteed product."
