Warisan Hospitality – the artisan's approach to custom furniture design

Established in 1989, Warisan has become a modern furniture production facility with offices and showrooms worldwide. While the company specialises in large contract orders, it is capable of supplying specialised furniture for private residences, boutique, cafés and hotels.

While 85 per cent of the products are custom made, the company also carries collections of more than 1,000 furniture models, which can be tweaked to the specifications of their clients.

"We produce more custom designs than our own models, but often times our standard collections are the inspiration for that custom work," said Paul Campbell – General Manager of Warisan Hospitality.

"We pride ourselves on being solution providers. We are up for any challenge, whether an aesthetic we have never tried before, tricky technical specifications, or tight budgets."

The company now employs more than 400 Indonesian craftsmen, designers, project leaders and team members, working together to produce goods of highest quality within competitive pricing.

Since the first project for Coco Palm Maldives in 1998, the company was able to establish outlets across the globe. Some of the recent notable works undertaken by the company in the Maldives include projects in Hurawalhi Maldives, Komandoo Island Resort and Spa, Meeru Island Resort, Rihiveli by Castaway Hotels and Escapes, and Kuredu Island Resort and Spa, to name a few.

Campbell mentions that it is just as important to do boutique private islands as it is to work for larger projects or refresh old projects.

"Each and every project we undertake is important and special for us," he emphasises.

All Warisan standard furniture comes with a 12-month warranty and is made with high-quality raw materials. Sourced from Indonesia, where strict regulations are followed to ensure sustainability. With more than 28 years of experience, Warisan maintains respect for its team and clients as a core value.

Campbell concludes: "We are passionate about getting it right for our clients. They believe in us."
